THE LISTENING POST

For the past few days I have been amusing myself by thinking of two men, one of them well-known to me and the other a stranger, and of their reactions to things following a trade which they made last Saturday. I keep wondering how the days seem to them, for both are facing strange situations. One is facing a strange situation because he no longer does the things he did for many years; the other is facing the same strange situation because he must do the things which the other man did, and in a strange town among strange people. It must be an odd feeling for both of them.

For a few days ago Cyrus Dement sold the Union City Daily Messenger to Ed Critchlow of Elkhart, Indiana, and the latter took charge of the Messenger last Monday morning. It is naturally true that Mr. Critchlow has been in the newspaper business and knows its duties and responsibilities thoroughly. But he did not know any person in Union City at the beginning, one might say. Perhaps he met a few of them during his visits there while making the purchase—this might have involved bankers, for all I know—but in the main, one might say that on Monday morning the new publisher went down to a strange newspaper office, opened the doors for business and proceeded to print a newspaper about and for people he did not know in the least. True, the staff that Mr. Dement had put together still remained on the job, but when a man came in at the front door Mr. Critchlow did not know whether it was the biggest advertiser or the town bore coming in. This condition will continue for a long time, for it requires months to become really acquainted with the people in a strange town, and there will be many embarrassing moments when the Indiana man mistakes one man for another, or tries to call a name which eludes him. I know, for I have been through with such moments and they can be embarrassing.

On the other hand Mr. Dement must readjust his days quite considerably. No longer will certain things click in his mind when he happens to hear them. For days and days, as he hears gossip and stray news items he will have the sudden urge to write them, and it will come as a shock when he job. For thirteen years he has been vitally interested in such things, and now, suddenly, I might say, this interest need no longer be maintained. News can flow all about him and he need not try to remember or make notes of anything which comes up.

This latter feeling is one that I cannot even imagine. I have been at this job so long that those things have become almost automatic. I go to some public meeting, and invariably the pattern of it falls into place, as I weigh the news elements, and before many minutes I have even written the head for it. I talk to some person at a coffee saloon, or on the street and he tells a yarn and unconsciously I began to look at it with an eye to making a column. I grow indignant or enthusiastic over something I read or hear and it begins to fall into form for an editorial. Thus it goes, day after day, and many times I get extremely weary of it. But I know, if this even pattern of days should be disturbed I would not know what to do with myself, and I guess if the sheriff and such like will let me alone I'll keep on going as I have been going for these many years. But there have been times this week, as I thought of Dement's free and idle days, that these came a little touch of envy, or what I thought was envy.

Would Conscript Men If Less Than 400,000 Apply

Draft Uncertainty Expected To Cut College Enrollments

Washington, — Tentatively, the House tonight overrode the managers of the peace-time draft bill and voted, 185 to 155, to give the voluntary enlistment system a 60-day trial before conscripting men for the Army.

It adopted an amendment, offered by Rep. Fish (R.-N. Y.), under which the draft would not become effective if 400,000 or more recruits present themselves within that period.

If a lesser number should apply, enough men would be drafted to bring the total to 400,000, the number of new recruits which the War Department wants by the end of the year.

A similar amendment was rejected by the Senate, 41 to 43, before it passed the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory training bill.

The House decision was tentative because, under its rules, the managers of the bill may, and unquestionably will, demand a roll-call vote on the Fish proposal later.

With time in which to repair their lines, they predicted they would then produce a majority against the amendment.

In any event, although opponents of conscription voted almost solidly for the Fish proposal to mean that the bill itself was threatened with defeat. Numerous members said in the debate that if the amendment were adopted, they would support the bill.

Fish and other supporters of the proposal argued vehemently that it would "in no way hinder or delay" the national defense program since War Department plans contemplated the induction of no conscripts before Nov. 8 or 10 anyway.

But advocates of immediate conscription hotly denounced the amendment as one with two purposes: to "scuttle" the measure or postpone the essential issue until after the Presidential election.

Its acceptance, Rep. Cox (D.-Ga.), shouted at one point, would prove that the House consists of an "aggregation of miserably cowardly politicians."

The House author of the bill, Rep. Wadsworth (R.-N. Y.), said the Fish amendment would "throw a monkey wrench into the whole machinery" of expanding the Army.

If 400,000 volunteers were added to the Army in the next 60 days, he said, the Army would not be able to provide them with housing and clothing. Under conscription, he added, the induction of that many men would be spread over the period between the present and Jan. 1.

Suit Ties Up Jap Ship In Collision

Los Angeles — A $200,000 libel suit today halted sailing of the Japanese freighter Sakito Maru which rammed and sank the fishing barge Olympic II yesterday with a probable loss of eight lives.

The freighter remained in San Pedro Channel for repairs to two holes in the starboard bow and a dent on the port side.

Seventeen men, women and children were rescued after the collision in heavy fog two miles offshore from San Pedro. The bodies of two victims were recovered. Six other persons are missing.

The libel suit was filed by the Hermosa Amusement Corp., owners of the barge, against the N. Y. K. line and the ship's captain, S. Sato.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., —Mary Wolf, 17, told police today she shot her nine-year-old brother to death "to see what would happen to me."

The girl, a high school graduate was charged with first degree murder after she confessed that, "on a sudden impulse," she fired a 22-calibre bullet into the boys head as he slept.

The victim, Frederick Wolf died instantly. The shooting occurred at about 11 o'clock last night shortly after Mary's boy friend, Emmett McNutt, 18 had left the Wolf home on an errand and before he returned.

Coach Giles Talks To Lions Today

Coach Herschel Giles, who has taken charge of athletics at Fulton High School this year, was the guest speaker at the Lions Club today, being introduced by Supt. Lewis.

Coach Giles, in a brief talk stated he could show people on the field better than he could talk of football, and added that it was too early for him to make predictions as to what the football team might do this year.

"We have a good bunch of boys out this week and will have more next week," he said. "However, I am stranger to football in this section and could not make any predictions as to how our boys will stand up under the schedule which starts next Friday night in Martin. We hope to make a good showing in all games."

Coach Giles urged that all business men make a special effort to encourage the boys when possible, and this was warmly seconded by Supt. Lewis, who spoke at some length on prospects of the year. He stated that he believed the team would make a good record, that material seemed to be better, and added that the boys were beginning their work with great enthusiasm.

Of schools already opened, Dr. Walters said the University of California at Berkeley recorded its first attendance drop in many years—a decrease of 800 students, or 5 1-2 per cent.

Japan Gets Right-Of-Way For Back Door Attack On China

Hongkong, —A preliminary, basic agreement giving Japan right-of-way in French Indo-China for a back door attack on China in an effort to wind up the three-year-old war was reported tonight by authoritative neutral quarters at Hanol.

This concession of a "limited" right to land Japanese troops and supplies at Haiphong was said to have been reached between Tokyo and the Vichy government of France. It was still subject to negotiation of details at Hanol.

This was the latest and apparently best informed version of the crisis in the most populous segment of defeated France's troubled empire.

Invasion Threat Fast The threat of a full-fledged, forcible invasion of Indo-China—the essence of a reported Japanese ultimatum of Monday—appeared to have passed. One explanation was that Major General Isamu Nishihara, Japanese negotiator-in-chief, had overstepped himself.

Confronted with a French warning of armed resistance to any invasion and a declaration that acquiescence would be incompatible with Vichy's instructions, Nishihara, under pressure from Tokyo, was said to have re-entered conversations with French colonial officials.

(Britain meantime has "reminded" Japan through diplomatic channels that it wants Indo-China's integrity preserved, it was announced in London.)

Vulnerable Spot Open However won, the right to slip troops to the Yunnan border of Indo-China would open up for Japan a great new avenue of attack on the forces, resources and communications of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's Central Chinese government.

Invasion of Yunnan would put a serious crimp in China's resistance because of the war industries centered there and the fact that would be able to cut the main road if Britain ever decided to open it.

House Votes 60-Day Trial Enlistment

Cincinnati, — Uncertainty over conscription legislation currently before Congress will result in decreased college enrollments this year, Dr. Raymond Walters, president of the University of Cincinnati, reported Thursday.

Nationally recognized as an authority on curricular and enrollment trends, Dr. Walters summarized a survey made during an 8,000 mile swing of the United States.

"The chief factor in the collegiate picture at this moment," he said, "is the effect which may result from conscription. The Senate bill provides that one-tenth of all college men, 21 years of age or over, except divinity students, be liable for Army service. The House bill would defer the training of drafted men in colleges until end of the academic year."

This "seems likely to deter some students from returning to college," Dr. Walters noted. To offset this, however, a number of schools, including New York University and Oberlin College, have urged current enrollees to return, with assurance that tuition and other payments will be refunded if they are drafted for immediate service.

Of schools already opened, Dr. Walters said the University of California at Berkeley recorded its first attendance drop in many years—a decrease of 800 students, or 5 1-2 per cent.

Death Toll Stands At 6

The score on the man hunt stood Thursday:

One guard slain at Cummins the day of the break.

One posseman killed at Columbia, La., early the following morning.

One convict killed near Columbia the second day.

One convict killed near Vicksburg, Miss., the third day.

Two convicts killed near Winchester, Ark., Thursday.

Twenty-one convicts recaptured at scattered points throughout the search, only one of whom was wounded.

The convicts killed Thursday were James Scott, 21, serving one year for grand larceny, and Raymond Harrell, 24, serving twenty-one years for robbery. They were slain by a trusty guard from the Cummins farm who kicked open the door of a cabin from which the two were firing on a posse.

Dogs Lead Posse to Cabin Bloodhounds had led the posse to the plantation cabin, officials reported, and when a light was thrown on the cabin, shortly before dawn, Scott and Harrell opened fire. While other members of the posse kept the attention of the prisoners engaged, the trusty made his way to the cabin, broke in and ended the battle.

B. G. Holtzclaw, 47, alias Harry Martin of Louisville, was captured while sleeping in a cabin near Douglas, a half-mile from the scene of the prison break.

He offered no resistance and officers said he had been wandering in circles in the woods for three days. Holtzclaw is under a life sentence for murder of Elmo Kelly, Warren filling station operator.

PRESSURE TOO GREAT

The Hatch law and various other pieces of legislation affecting the public actions of persons who hold federal positions are having a profound effect in many ways. We have seen the workings of the law in Kentucky, where almost a complete change of party organization was made necessary by the provisions of the Hatch Law, and there will be other changes as the days pass by. It is, of course, too early to know whether these changes will be permanent and whether the Hatch law will really remain in effect and continue to be obeyed. Many other pieces of legislation similar to this have been tried before and have finally lapsed into disuse, and this may be the fate of the much talked Hatch Law.

One of the most remarkable effects of this legislation is reported from Owensboro. In that city Lawrence Hager is publisher of the daily newspapers and also controls radio station. In 1935 he was named postmaster, and this position is a well paying one and normally carries with it quite a lot of political power. Naturally also it carries a lot of responsibility, for the office holders look to the postmaster for many things. Following the first appointment Mr. Hager was again named at the end of four years, this latter being under the new plan of giving a man a life tenure in the office.

How Mr. Hager has resigned the office and asks the Postmaster General to be relieved of the past just as soon as a successor can be secured. Mr. Hager's reasons for the resignation are interesting and reveal the depth of federal supervision over any political work that a federal office holder may do. He says: "I feel that I must devote more of my time to my newspaper and radio work, and federal interference with this work is such that I cannot do justice to it." Naturally a newspaper man must take some part in politics, and presumably a radio station is pretty much on the order of a newspaper. It is likely that if Mr. Hager had continued as postmaster he would have run afoul of this new law, and he takes the realistic view that perhaps he will be better off in his own business. After all, it is well known that being a postmaster is not a bed of roses, for all postmasters are looked on as angels in all political campaigns. Under the new laws it may finally reach the point where a postmaster can really remain aloof from political campaigns, but this will require some doing, for in ways that are deep and dark the professional politicians know their way about.

It is not often that one hears of a postmaster resigning his position, and particularly when his postoffice happens to be in such a large town as Owensboro. Such jobs have always been looked upon as most attractive, and they have been and are attractive from many angles. But if a man happens to own a couple of newspapers and radio station and is also vitally interested in politics, it appears unlikely that he will be able to continue as postmaster and still do a job with his other interests. At any rate, this appears to be Mr. Hager's belief, and he solved the problem by quitting the postal job.

IS HIRING TO BE COMPULSORY?

(Milwaukee Journal)

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Boston upholds the contention of the National Labor Relations Board that the board's powers reach farther than the control of the relationship between employee and employer. They reach, in some instances at least, as far as prospective hiring.

The court holds the Wanmbecc Mills of Manchester, N. H., must give jobs and two years' back pay to two men who were never in the mill's employment. This is on the ground that the men were refused jobs in the first place because they were unionists and union leaders in a neighboring mill.

Here is a difficult problem. The Wagner Act makes it unfair labor practice to interfere with a worker by discrimination in regard to hire or tenure of employment. This word "hire" was no doubt put in to prevent blacklisting. And blacklisting once was a device used fairly widely to fight unionism. Witness the long struggle in the old days between the railroad unions and management in which hundreds of workers were refused jobs for no other reasons than that they were union members.

On the other hand, if a government agency can reach out and say that an employer shall be punished for refusing to hire certain workers, free choice in hiring is at an end. Or it will at least be perilous to give an honest reason for refusal to hire.

By the words of the Circuit Court of Appeals, if this employer had given some other reason—he did not need men or he had other applicants whom he thought more skillful—he would not have been in peril. What a crop of dodges this new extension of ULRB power will create.

While the word "hire" is used in the Wagner Act in the one instance of citing unfair labor practice, it is also clear from a reading of the law as a whole that it is supposed to deal with the employer-prospective employee relationship. Even the definition of "employee" would seem to include only those on the pay roll, plus (in a limited way) others who belong to the same trade or profession and have interests common to those of the pay roll employees.

There is haziness here, without, and we must have a final decision by the Supreme Court before we know whether the Wagner Act and the NLRB cover the prospective employee.

Bottles Must Be Returned

The dairymen of Fulton are confronted with a shortage of bottles and are asking that all customers make arrangements to return bottles as soon as possible. If bottles are not returned it means a loss to all dairymen, and if this loss continues it will make an increase in the price of milk inevitable. All milk customers are urged to return these bottles in order to prevent this increase.

Paducah Indians Score 4 In Tenth Frame And Win 7-3

The Fulton Tigers and the Paducah Indians battled to a 3-3 tie last night and in the tenth the Indians scored four runs while the Tigers were held scoreless in that frame and the Indians won the game 7-3. Glenn Sanford was on the mound for the Tigers until the fatal tenth inning and pitched beautifully up until that time. Gentry, playing the outfield, was called in to take over the pitching in that inning and retired the last two men in order.

Dave Koslo, on the mound for the Indians, struck out eleven Fulton batters, with all except the Fulton pitcher fanning out. He gave only two bases on balls.

The Tigers scored two of their runs in the first inning when Mullen and Quackenbush scored on Peterson's hit, going through the centerfielder, and Peterson landed on third base. The Indians came back in the second inning and tied the score two runs. In the third the Tigers took a one run lead when Mullen scored on Males single, and that lead was held until the ninth inning.

In the ninth Gallo and Males both had brainstorms. Ed Wright pinch-hitting for Dave Koslo in the ninth, hit a ground ball to Gallo at second, and Gallo, with a double play in his grasp, tried to catch Williams as he raced to the plate with the tying run.

The last four Paducah runs were scored when Kramer singled, Quackenbush dropped a long fly from Koshay's bat, Roy Beuschen singled to score both Williams was walked, and Ivy doubled to score Beuschen. Koshay came home after Balser's long fly to Mathis.

Manager "Moon" Mullen again led the Tigers' batting with three for five trips to the plate while Kramer did the same for the Indians.

The Tigers meet Mayfield here tonight and will go to the Mayfield park tomorrow night, ending the season in Fairfield Sunday afternoon.
